

Kitchen Sisters to speak at BU

Ever wonder what really goes on in other people's kitchens? You may find out when the Kitchen Sisters -- Davia Nelson and Nikki Silva -- co-producers of NPR's "Hidden Kitchens" series, give the keynote address at the joint conference of the Association for the Study of Food and Society, and the Agriculture, Food, and Human Values Society (admission for public is $5) . They're sure to open the door to kitchens you've never thought of. Case in point: the George Foreman Grill. Until a listener called in to suggest the topic, says Silva, ``we had never considered an appliance as a hidden kitchen before." After all, she adds, if you don't want guests to know you use it, ``you can hide it under the bed." The two will pull vignettes from their radio series, playing many audio tracks of the original stories, recordings that combine dialogue, music, and kitchen sounds. The result is something Silva calls ``little movies for your ears." Saturday from 6 to 7 p.m., the Kitchen Sisters will be at Boston University's George Sherman Student Union Conference Auditorium, 775 Commonwealth Ave., Boston ; 617-353-9852, or go to www.bu.edu/lifelong/conference. --

EMILY SCHWAB